PM's statement on the current economic situation in the country

The movement of the exchange rate of the Rupee recently is a matter of concern to the government. The Rupee has depreciated sharply against the dollar since the last week of May. There are concerns, and justifiably so, of the impact this would have on our economy.

What triggered the sharp and sudden depreciation was the markets' reaction to certain unexpected external developments. On May 22, 2013, the US central bank indicated that it would soon 'taper' its quantitative easing as the US economy was recovering. This led to a reversal of capital flows to emerging economies which are now sharply pulling down not just the Rupee, but also the Brazilian Real, the Turkish Lira, the Indonesian Rupiah, the South African Rand and many other currencies.

While global factors such as tensions over Syria and the prospect of U.S. Federal Reserve tapering its policy of quantitative easing have caused general weakness in emerging market currencies, the rupee has been especially hit because of our large current account deficit and some other domestic factors. We intend to act to reduce the current account deficit and bring about an improvement in the economy.

In 2010-11 and the years prior to it, our current account deficit was more modest and financing it was not difficult, even in the crisis year of 2008-09. Since then, there has been a deterioration, mainly on account of huge imports of gold, higher costs of crude oil imports and recently, of coal. On the export side, weak demand in our major markets has kept our exports from growing. Exports have been further hit by a collapse in iron ore exports. Taken together, these factors have made our current account deficit unsustainably large.

Clearly we need to reduce our appetite for gold, economise in the use of petroleum products and take steps to increase our exports.

We have taken measures to reduce the current account deficit. The Finance Minister has indicated that it will be below $ 70 billion this year, and we will take all possible steps to ensure that outcome. These are already showing results with a declining trade deficit in both June and July. The Government is confident that we will be able to lower our current account deficit to $70 billion. Our medium term objective is to reduce the current account deficit to 2.5% of our GDP. Our short term objective is to finance the current account deficit in an orderly fashion. We will make every effort to maintain a macro economic framework friendly to foreign capital inflows to enable orderly financing of the current account deficit.

Coming back to the effects of the Rupee depreciation, we must realise that part of this depreciation was merely a needed adjustment. Inflation in India has been much higher than in advanced economies. Therefore, it is natural that there has to be a correction in the exchange rate to account for this difference. To some extent, depreciation can be good for the economy as this will help to increase our export competitiveness and discourage imports. We intend to do more.

Growth has slowed down in recent quarters. I expect growth in the first quarter of 2013-14 to be relatively flat, but as the effects of the good monsoon kick in, I expect it to pick up.

There are many reasons for this optimism. The decisions of the Cabinet Committee on Investment in reviving stalled projects will start bearing fruit in the second half of the year. The full effect of the growth friendly measures that have been taken over the strengthen those fundamentals, we intend to do more. Growth has slowed down in recent quarters. The decisions of the Cabinet Committee on Investment in reviving stalled projects will start bearing fruit in the second half of the year. The full effect of the growth friendly measures that have been taken over the essary, it is important to recognize that the fundamentals of the Indian economy continue to be strong. India's overall public-debt to GDP ratio has been on a declining trend from 73.2% of GDP in 2006-07 to 66% in 2012-13. Similarly, India's external debt is only 21.2% of GDP and while short-term debt has risen, it stands at 5.2% of GDP. Our forex reserves stand at US$278bn, and are more than sufficient to meet India's external financing requirements.

Many foreign analysts worry about banking problems in the wake of the currency crisis. The Indian banking sector has seen some rise in bad loans. The question that needs to be asked is whether there is a liquidity problem or a solvency problem for the borrowers. My belief is that there is a liquidity problem. Many of the projects are not unviable but only delayed, in contrast to the overbuilding that has characterized the banking sector problems in other countries. As these projects come on stream, they will generate revenue and repay loans. Our banks are fortunately well capitalized much above the Basel norms and have the capacity to provide for any non-performing assets until those assets are turned around. The easy reforms of the past have been done. We have the more difficult reforms to do such as reduction of subsidies, insurance and pension sector reforms, eliminating bureaucratic red tape and implementing Goods and Services Tax. These are not low hanging fruit and need political consensus.

It is here that I urge Members across the political spectrum to reflect on the need of the hour. Many laws that are necessary are held up for lack of political consensus. Reforms such as the Goods and Services Tax, which everyone agrees is essential to restore growth, require States to come to an agreement. We need to forge consensus on such vital issues. I urge political parties to work towards this end and to join in the government's efforts to put the economy back on the path of stable and sustainable growth.

There may be short term shocks to our economy and we need to face them. That is the reality of a globalised economy, whose benefits we have reaped in the last 15 to 20 years. We will need to ensure that the fundamentals remain strong so that India continues to grow at a healthy rate for many years to come. That we will ensure. We are no doubt faced with challenges, but we have the capacity to address them. It is at times like these that the nation shows what it is truly capable of."

(Based on PM's statement in Lok Sabha on 30th August 2013)

Highlights

- Global factors hit ₹ ; Drop in exchange rate of ₹ is a matter of concern.
- CAD is unsustainable; Reduce appetite of gold and economies the use of petroleum products.
- Value of ₹ is determined by fundamentals of Indian Economy which continue to be strong.
- No reversal of reforms & political consensus is desired.
- We have the capacity to face challenges.

ness and discourage imports.

There are many sectors which are regaining competitiveness in export markets as a result of the fall in the exchange rate. Over the next few months, I expect the effects of this to be felt more strongly, both in exports and in the financial position of exporting sectors. This in itself would correct the current account deficit to some extent.

However, foreign exchange markets have a notorious history of overshooting. Unfortunately this is what is happening not only in relation to the Rupee but also other currencies.

The RBI and Government have taken a number of steps to stabilize the rupee. Some measures have given rise to doubts in some quarters that capital controls are on the horizon. I would like to assure the House and the world at large, that the Government is not contemplating any such measures. The last two decades have seen India grow as an open economy and we have benefitted from it. There is no question of reversing these policies just because there is some turbulence in capital and currency markets. The sudden decline in the exchange rate is certainly a shock, but we will address this through other measures, not through capital controls or by reversing the process of reforms. The Finance Minister has clarified this, and I take this opportunity to reaffirm our position.

Ultimately, the value of the rupee is determined by the fundamentals of our economy. While we have taken a number of actions to last six months, such as liberalizing norms for FDI, resolution of some tax issues of concern to industry and fuel subsidy reform will come into play over the year resulting in higher growth particularly in manufacturing. Exports are also starting to look up as the rest of the world is improving its growth. So I believe growth will pick up in the second half of the fiscal year barring extreme unforeseen eventualities.

There are questions about the size of the fiscal deficit. The government will do whatever is necessary to contain the fiscal deficit to 4.8% of GDP this year. The most growth-friendly way to contain the deficit is to spend carefully, especially on subsidies that do not reach the poor, and we will take effective steps to that end.

Inflation measured by the Wholesale Price Index has been coming down, even though inflation measured by the Consumer Price Index is still too high. The depreciation of the rupee and rise in dollar prices of petroleum products will no doubt lead to some further upward pressure on prices. The RBI will therefore continue to focus on bringing down inflation. The favourable monsoon and the anticipated good harvest will help bring down food prices and ease the task of controlling inflation.

All in all, the macro-stabilization process which should support the value of the rupee is under way. I expect that as the fruits of our efforts materialize, currency markets will recover.

Even while we go about doing what is nec-

FM Talks of 10-Point Plan to Boost Growth

Says more reforms, fewer restrictions, open economy is the solution

The Finance Minister Mr. P. Chidambaram has said the government will initiate steps to get around judicial restraints on mining and green clearances as part of a 10-point plan to get the faltering economy back on rail. He told Parliament that steps to boost investment, recapitalize state-run banks and spur manufacturing and exports were key elements of his strategy.

Although the government has repeatedly talked of pushing reforms, the latest statement was seen to be directed at the markets after the rupee breached the 66-mark against the dollar and settled at a fresh low of 66.19. "What we need now is not less reforms but more reforms, not more restrictions but less restrictions, not a closed

Career In Banking Sector

-Manoj Sethi

With millions of Indians still in the preliminary stage of accessing banking services, banking jobs offer a lucrative career option and promise steady and fast growth for the younger generation. For a very long time now, bank jobs have been considered as very prestigious. The best part is that bank employees are hardly ever discharged from employment as part of a downsizing move, as Indian banks continue to grow and prosper at an amazing speed. Bank jobs were earlier considered the domain of only finance grads, but now graduates from every stream stand a chance as banks require candidates in various capacities.

The economy of the country is growing at a steady pace, and this growth has been passed on to banks in a big way. Banks present huge opportunities to young people, and this is largely due to the fact that they have diversified into various other products than just core banking. The pre-requisites for a bank job in today's environment are good communication skills, management skills, analytical skills and knowledge of computer operations. All these are made excellent use of in the dynamic work environment that modern day banks present.

Career Progression: There is a well-defined career progression path in each public sector bank. Performance and potential are key elements which determine this career progression. In tune with the times, banks have reviewed their promotion policy and now bright, hardworking and knowledgeable employees take less time to move to higher scales.

Those who join as clerks may be promoted as officers, as per banks norms. For bright candidates, in some banks, this promotion from a clerk to an officer is possible in a period as short as one year. Most of the vacancies in higher scales exist in Middle Management Grade II or III. Professionally qualified people (with qualifications like MBA, CA etc.) stand better chance in this regard.

Most senior officials in public sector banks who started their career as clerks or scale I officers have, in due course, reached the level of General Manager. After that, the position of Executive Director or Chairman of the bank is also open. These are very high positions, nomination to which is decided by the government of India and not by individual banks.

Many public sector banks have a network of foreign branches. Thus, joining a public sector bank also gives one the opportunity of working abroad.

The career progression of Officers is as :
Junior Management Grade - Scale I: Officer

Middle Management Grade - Scale II: Manager

Middle Management Grade - Scale III: Senior Manager

Senior Management Grade - Scale IV: Chief Manager

Senior Management Grade Scale V: Assistant General Manager

Top Management Grade Scale VI: Deputy General Manager

Top Management Grade Scale VII: General Manager

The new rules of competition require recognition of the importance of consumers and the necessity to address the needs through innovative products supported by new technology.

The skills required to improve personal banker style are:

1. People skills
2. Organizational skills
3. Product knowledge and the ability to relate that to client needs
4. Quick learning abilities
5. Analytical skills
6. Proficiency to use excel in roles across operations
7. Business analysis and process improvement

Expansion and Latest Developments in Banking Sector: The growing Indian Diaspora, with its strong home country linkages, seeks a unique combination of Indian ethnicity and global standards that offers a valuable niche opportunity for Indian banks. Banks have diversified their activities and are getting into new products and services that include opportunities in credit cards, consumer finance, wealth management, life and general insurance, investment banking, mutual funds, pension fund regulation, stock broking services, custodian services and private equity etc.

The expansion of the banking sector and its convergence with other financial sectors, such as insurance, NBFCs and Capital markets, retirement of existing employees and financial inclusion have created myriad opportunities in the banking sector.

Infrastructure, Risk Management, Banking and Financial Services, Management Information Systems and Customer Relations Management are a few areas which seek specialization.

The announcement of an All Women's bank by the government of India and the allocation of an initial capital of Rs.1000 crore in the Union budget and RBI to dole out licences to corporate houses and others for launching new banks are the latest developments which provide lucrative opportunities and options to aspirants.

Types of Bank Exams: Indian banks conduct exams for Probationary Officers, Clerical cadre and Specialist Officer. The exams enumerated below are prerequisites for gaining entry to the most prestigious banks in India.

- A series of Common Written Examinations (CWEs) conducted by the Institute of Banking Personnel Selection (IBPS) as a pre-requisite for the selection of personnel to serve as Probationary Officers / Management Trainees / Clerks / Specialist Officers in 20 Public Sector banks (including IDBI) and for Officers and Office Assistants in 82 Regional Rural Banks (RRB).

- The exam conducted by the SBI and SBI Associate banks for recruitment as clerks and officers

- The exam conducted by Private Sector banks for recruitment to the posts of Clerks and Officers (Some of the old Private banks like Karur Vysya Bank (KVB), Tamilnad Mercantile Bank (TMB), Karnataka Bank (KB) have started using the IBPS CWE scores for recruitment of Clerks and Probationary officers. Even new private banks, like Federal Bank, are also recruiting on the basis of IBPS CWE scores)

The snapshot of IBPS 2012 examination statistics is given below:

- 7.5 lakh people applied for the IBPS PO CWE exam conducted in June 2012

The Finance Minister Mr. P Chidambaram conceded for the first time that domestic factors, too, are responsible for the depreciation of the rupee. Replying to a question in Rajya Sabha during question hour, Chidambaram said other than the global economic environment, decisions taken at home to counter the impact of the 2008 economic meltdown were also responsible for the depreciation of the Indian currency.

The Finance Minister said: "There are domestic factors. One of them is we allowed fiscal deficit to be breached because of certain decisions we took which brought us growth and stabilised economy; but we paid the price for it. We are taking steps to correct the fiscal deficit. We will not breach the new fiscal targets. The current account deficit is a concern; we spent more dollars largely for essential commodities like oil. We are taking steps to contain the current account deficit. We allowed current account deficit to swell because of certain decisions that we took during the period 2009 to 2011.

"It brought us growth, it stabilised the economy, we staved off the very serious consequences of the 2008 collapse of the US economy. But it cost us in terms of fiscal deficit and current account deficit," Mr. Chidambaram added.

According to the Finance Minister, the government has taken steps to check the fiscal deficit and is now on the path to fiscal consolidation. He said the exchange rate was remarkably stable between August 2012 and May 2013, but the rupee has come under pressure since May 22. "The currencies of all the emerging economies have come under pressure. For the moment we believe the value of the rupee has overshot its true value," he said, while advising analysts to avoid speculating on the point where the rupee will settle in relation to the dollar. "We have to be patient, we have to be firm, we have to be clear-headed... in order to strengthen the fundamentals of the economy... I am confident that the rupee will find its true appropriate level."

He added that once the investment cycle and manufacturing picks up, it will have a positive impact on the economy and, in particular, the current account deficit.

The Finance Minister Mr. Chidambaram tried to allay concerns on the proposed food security law widening the fiscal deficit. As the rupee started falling, he cautioned against any panic reaction. "We have done our sum...we will still remain within the limit (for fiscal deficit) I have set for myself in the Budget papers," Mr. Chidambaram said in a press conference. To a query on whether food security Bill passed by the Lok Sabha would derail the fiscal math, he said, "I have already said 4.8 per cent (of GDP) is a red line and the red line will not be breached." For 2012-13, the government had brought down the country's fiscal deficit to 4.9 per cent of gross domestic product from 5.7 per cent in the previous financial year. The total food subsidy budgeted for this financial year is Rs 90,000 crore, of which Rs 10,000 crore is towards implementation of the food security Bill. The Bill would guarantee five kg of rice, wheat and coarse cereals a person a month at a fixed prices of Rs 3, Rs 2 and Re 1 a kg, respectively. The total burden of the Bill was pegged at Rs 1.25 lakh crore; after a few amendments, it was expected to rise to Rs 1.3 lakh crore. The amendments basically meant states such as Tamil Nadu, whose annual allocation of food grain would be cut by 1.2 million tonnes, would get extra grains, but at the existing Above-Poverty-Line rate of Rs 8.3 a kg for rice and Rs 6.1 a kg for wheat.

FOOD SECURITY BILL- BOON FOR THE POOR

According to the latest Global Hunger Report, India continues to be in the category of those nations where hunger is 'alarming'. What is worse, despite high growth, hunger index in India between 1996 and 2011 has gone up from 22.6 to 23.7. N C Saxena explains

NSSO data show that the average per capita food expenditure during the period 1993 to 2010 increased only by 0.2 per cent annually in rural India, and fell by 0.1 per cent per annum in the urban areas. The cereal intake of the bottom 20 per cent in rural India is only 10 kg per month as against 12 kg for the top decile of the population, though the poor need more food as they do more manual work and their access to fruits, vegetables and milk is negligible. From their limited resources the poor are forced to spend more on health, children's education, transport and fuel than before. Food is still needed, but not demanded for lack of resources. In the process they get stunted and malnourished. Endemic hunger continues to afflict a large proportion of Indian population.

It took Government of India (GOI) more than four years after the President of India's declaration in Parliament on 4th June 2009 to bring the National Food Security Act through an Ordinance. From a date to be notified Government would provide 5 kg of foodgrains per person per month to Priority households, and 35 kg per household per month to 25 million Antyodaya households. The total number of Priority and Antyodaya households would be 75% of the rural population and 50 per cent of the urban population, thus covering about 180 million households as opposed to only 100 million right now. Their state-wise number will be determined by GOI but identification of eligible households is left to state governments. As a lower amount of disposable income would now be spent on grains, the Act will also indirectly satisfy household demand for other essential items, such as education, health, and clothes.

The enhanced entitlement would need about 55 million tonnes (MT) of grain annually (assuming 90 per cent offtake), as against annual procurement of about 65MT, thus leaving sufficient quantity for other programmes like mid-day meals, defence, and emergency. It is hoped that government will also push up direct purchase of paddy in states like Bihar, UP, and Orissa where the paddy farmers are largely dependent on rice millers who pay a pittance thus depriving farmers in these states the benefit of minimum support price that Haryana and Punjab farmers enjoy. This will not only benefit the farmers in backward states, but will also considerably enhance the total annual procurement. In any case, export of cereals should be stopped immediately. If basmati is to be exported, equal amount of ordinary rice must be imported. It is highly unethical to export foodgrains and feed cattle of richer countries when our own people are dying of starvation.

The Bill encourages states to do PDS reforms including doorstep delivery of foodgrains, end-to-end computerisation; and leveraging Aadhaar (UID) for unique identification of entitled beneficiaries. The progress is slow, though not in all states. Chhattisgarh, Orissa, Himachal Pradesh, Gujarat, and Rajasthan have undertaken state-level reforms by extending coverage through their own budget, improving delivery and increasing transparency.

The UID programme will help in eliminating duplicate and fake beneficiaries from the PDS rolls as no resident can have a duplicate number since it is linked to their individual biometrics. As is well-known, the practice of multiple ration cards issued under a single name is widespread nationally. In Delhi alone, RTI petitions uncovered 901 ration cards issued in the name of one woman in Badarpur. Even in Tamil Nadu, the problem of ghost ration cards exists which enables cooperative supervisors to make illegal gains.

Another advantage with the UID is making PDS entitlements portable, as beneficiaries would be able to withdraw their entitlements from any ration shop in the state.

It may however be added that large-scale substitution of PDS by direct cash transfers (DCT) is not feasible, as foodgrains purchased from the farmers through MSP mechanism need an outlet for distribution. Besides, DCT needs a good banking structure, a functional registration system and widespread use of debit cards. At best, it could be tried on a pilot basis in a few poor localities of metropolitan cities. Food subsidy in the short run would certainly go up from 85,000 to Rs 1,250 billion in a full year. Surjit Bhalla's calculation that it would be more than 3,000 billion is erroneous as it is based on the assumption that the present subsidy is spent on only 44.5 per cent of population consuming 2.1 kg per capita per month.

This would account for only 13.6 MT of foodgrains as against the actual distribution of 50.9 MT in 2011-12. Surjit's figure is laughable because even if the entire 50 MT was to be given free and assuming it had cost government Rs 20 per kg, the overall subsidy would be only 1,000 billion!

The impact of subsidy on fiscal deficit can be contained by reducing non-merit subsidies on fertilisers, cooking gas, and higher education. As government stocks will come down from the present high of 75 million tonnes to a manageable 30-35 MT, storage costs would come down. But greater reduction in subsidy would be achieved by abolishing the dual pricing system, which is impossible to implement, and sell government stocks to the fair price shop dealer at the market price, say Rs 20 for wheat. The consumer would go to him with only two rupees in cash as before and his UID card to buy a kg of wheat but the rest Rs 18 would get transferred to the shop keeper through the card. This will vastly reduce leakages and subsidy as well as improve the dealer's attitude towards the buyer.

Fiscal deficit is high in India because the tax-GDP ratio is only 15 per cent, far below other middle-income countries like Brazil (34.2), South Africa (31.2), Turkey (32.5), Russia (32.3), or even low income countries like Ghana (22.4) and Kenya (18.3). To contain the deficit one needs to improve tax collection and not cut down on development expenditure for the poor.

Social Media Interaction Online Democracy

Sushant Kumar

Internet has become one of the most important technologies to organize people socially. Present research contends that internet and web 2.0 have given rise to a new form of sovereignty to social actors who reject any organization or state that fails to give its prospective clients exactly what they want. Social Media has empowered the consumer as a social actor to voice complaints with reduced physical and psychological costs combined with greater visibility and organization facilitated through the social nature of these technologies. Also, the rate of adoption of internet has exceeded most mass communications technologies making it almost indispensable for the modern consumer. The growing popularity of social media has coincided with the decline of the use of traditional media, which has resulted in a shift from the concept of traditional one way communication to a mode where people interact with each other. These trends have empowered citizens to be aware of latest happenings and also helped them effectively communicate their opinion. On the other side, it has also enabled leaders of political organizations to get in touch and share information about themselves without any mediators.

Social Media's role for leaders is important from the perspective of instant information and feedback about the people and also from the viewpoint of building relationships. The power of listening on social media can help leaders effectively understand the needs of people. This understanding can lead to better relational development. Relational development is facilitated by reciprocated deeper disclosures that increase trust, build credibility and intimacy. These relationships can help citizens understand their leader and can facilitate emotional connections. Unfortunately, at present in India, there has been an over-reliance and focus on Twitter, which by very nature is a low depth medium. A greater reliance on text or video blogs can be far more beneficial for deeper disclosures, which can then be discussed through a more instant medium like Twitter. From the perspective of leader trying to win a vote, it is important to understand influence on social media. Aristotle, one of the pioneers on the idea of persuasion has talked about logos (logic), pathos (emotion) and ethos (credibility) as three modes of persuasion. Persuasion through emotion is one area where social media empowers leaders as opposed to the traditional curated discourse. Instant replies (reciprocity) to personal queries and thoughts of people make social media a relevant and a powerful tool for any leader. A critique of this debate has been that in the course of persuading people there are instances where there is a divergence between the thought of a leader and his or her political organization. While this tension leads to problems for political organizations, it also leads to a discourse that gives citizens a greater understanding of the leader and the party. Another important psychological aspect of social media is that leaders are talking to people through a computer mediated environment. Research shows that such an environment makes people less inhibited. It acts as a natural filter to reveal the true identity of a leader, which can be very conducive for a democracy in the long run. But, it also makes it important for the leader to show discretion to talk about issues that can be socially sensitive.

India is still emerging in the context of internet with social media users still very much concentrated in urban areas. An important aspect of the Indian Social Media is that it has a high representation of Youth. Approximately 60% of Indian social networking site users fall into the Gen Next category (19-24 years). This presents leaders of large political organizations a large opportunity of not only building influence but also use it to attract and motivate potential volunteers to join the cause of the organization they represent. Social Media also presents policy makers with an opportunity to persuade people to come out and vote and build a culture of healthy debate conducive for the social growth of this country.

50 Years of King's Speech

I Have A Dream: Martin Luther King Jr.

August 28 marked the 50th anniversary of Martin Luther King, Jr's "I have a dream" speech, which was defining moment in the history of American Civil Rights. During the March in Washington for jobs and freedom, this speech was delivered to more than 2 lakh civil right supporters.

"I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: "We hold these truths to be self - evident: that all men are created equal." I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood. I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the colour of their skin but content of their character."

Defying Odds, Indian Girls Win Archery Gold

The Indian women's recurve team of Bombayla Devi, Deepika Kumari and Rimil Buriuly defeated the formidable South Koreans to clinch the World Cup Stage IV crown in Wroclaw, Poland. It was the Indian women's second consecutive World Cup title, following their success in Medellin

(Colombia) in July this year. In the Stage 3 final, Deepika and her teammates had upstaged the fancied Chinese to take top honours in Colombia. "We have been here for a week now and it's been great overall." Bombayla, Deepika and Rimil defeated the Korean team -- comprising Yun

Ok-hee, Ki Bo-bae, and Joo Hyun-jung -- 219-215. Denmark claimed the bronze with a 210-194 win over Russia.

Hailing the win as special, Deepika said, "The debacle in the individual category hurt us. My happiness is measured. Individual event is my strength and I did not win that. However, beating Korea is a big deal. Everyone knows they are one of the best. They have the best of shooters and techniques. They always win and that invincibility is very daunting. Most teams are scared of them."

Deepika has her sights set on the World Championships and the Asian Games now. "We go straight to Aurangabad for the World Championship trials. This win gives us the required boost." Lok Sabha congratulated the women's archery team.

Deepika Kumari: The former World No.1, currently No.2, first came into the limelight by winning gold in the 2010 Commonwealth Games in the women's individual recurve event. She also won gold in the same competition in the women's team recurve, event along with Dola Banerjee and Bombayala Devi. The 19 year old from Jharkhand was conferred with the Arjun Award in the year 2012. Deepika qualified for the London Games, where she competed in the women's individual and women's team events but didn't have a great spell.

Laishram Bombayla Devi: The 28 year old veteran from Manipur represented India at two consecutive Olympics. At the 2008 Beijing Olympics, she qualified in the women's individual as well as team event, but failed to reach the final in either. She, along with Dola Banerjee and Pranitha Vardhini, was ranked sixth in the team events qualifiers. At the London Games, she bowed out in the pre-quarterfinals of the women's individual recurve event losing 2-6 to Mexico's Roman Aida.

Rimil Buriuly : The 22 year old from Uttar Pradesh was part of the bronze winning team in women's recurve events at the 2010 Asia Games in Guangzhou, China. Representing the Railway Sports Promotion Board, Rimil had a good run in the senior nationals. In her last outing in June, she beat Deepika Kumari in a game of nerves to win gold in the women's individual recurve. She has been very consistent in team events too, adding depth to the Indian team.
