RE-ENERGISING INDIA'S FOREIGN POLICY

Sheelkant Sharma

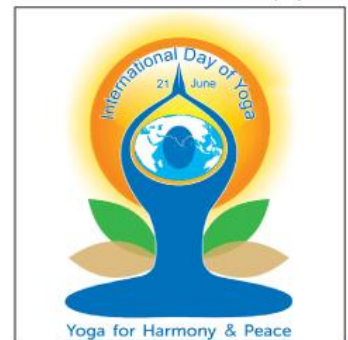

A year is a short time for diplomatic offensives to bear fruit in general. Nonetheless, the first year of Prime Minister Narendra Modi has brought new energy to the conduct of India's foreign policy. His thrust on 'neighbourhood first' has made a spectacular difference in strengthening relations with Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka; each of which he has visited. The latest visit to Bangladesh which concluded on 6 June 2015 has elicited generous encomiums in Bangladesh media, and has been well appreciated among the political parties and academia. The phenomenal success in changing perceptions in Bangladesh is eloquently expressed by the highly respected editor of Dhaka's Daily Star, Mahfuz Anam, who called PM Modi, "The new, visionary, path breaking Indian leader who seems to mesmerise people wherever he goes, as he did in his parting speech at the BICC. What a speech...". Such glowing tributes in Bangladesh are offered only very selectively and Prime Minister Modi's two days visit to this most crucial neighbour gave substance to back them; concluding the Land Boundary Agreement; offering 4 billion dollars for power projects, industrial parks, railways, trade-balancing and many other economic gains for mutual benefit. The foreign policy team in his government has constantly upgraded India's external impact, guided by Prime Minister's "out of box" thinking, disposition for prompt action and an indefatigable vigour. After a whirl-wind and historic 5-day visit to the United States last September he decided to invite President Obama to be the Chief Guest at the Republic Day ceremony in 2015. Obama's prompt acceptance and his return visit to India within six months - that too a second by any US president in entire history of Indo-US relations - became an all-time high water mark for the two countries. These visits produced an exhaustive agenda for intensified cooperation in practically every sphere from trade and investment; to defence technology, military exercises and hardware supplies; a meeting of minds on strategic perceptions in Asia Pacific; to nuclear power, solar and renewables; and health, agriculture, science and technology; the list continues. The Joint Statement at the end comprised a most comprehensive menu of 'things to do'. The follow up too has been pursued with sustained effort by both sides. State Visits figure prominently in foreign policy charts because they mobilize government machinery or as the Americans call, 'the inter-agency process' to review the full gamut of relations, identify areas demanding high level attention and push, and bring forth action points as well as issues that need to be resolved. A successful summit thus steps up the momentum of bilateral cooperation and raises significantly the overall compartment of bilateral understanding. Such visits are exceedingly well prepared, as has been done by the Prime Minister's Office and the Ministry of External Affairs, in each instance. External Affairs Minister and the National Security Adviser as well as other senior Cabinet colleagues of Prime Minister have visited the countries on his itinerary to lay ground work. Thus, each visit became focus of total attention, activity and made land mark achievements. The 19 foreign visits by the Prime Minister Modi covered India's immediate neighbours in SAARC region; in Asia-Pacific from Australia to China, Japan, South Korea, Mongolia and Fiji; in the G-7 group to US, Germany, France and Canada; and to Seychelles, Mauritius and Brazil; supplemented by incoming visits by heads of US, China, Russia, UK among others. These have completed a very productive summits agenda for India's relations with all great powers, top notch economies as well as emerging nations in the world and close neighbours. Prime Minister's itinerary touched countries which long missed a bilateral Prime Ministerial visit, not only in distant Australia and Canada but also in the immediate and extended neighbourhood and those with large Indian Diaspora such as Fiji, Mauritius, and Seychelles. Prime Minister's reaching out to Diaspora everywhere was also very successful. India's immediate neighbour Nepal received Prime Ministers intimate attention with two visits in a year; energising the spirit of close brotherhood with this very special Himalayan nation and his spontaneous personal involvement for response and relief by India after recent devastating earthquake. In addition, he gave full and unstinted support to Nepal's successful hosting of the SAARC Summit. Sri Lanka too during Prime Minister's much appreciated and overdue visit showed a turnaround shedding of negativity that befell on relations in recent past. Bhutan as India's closest neighbour figured first on Prime Ministers itinerary which accomplished continued upward graph of all-encompassing cooperation. The somewhat difficult relationship with China has been invested with enormous time and creative impulses at the highest level in both countries. Prime Minister

CAREERS IN COMMERCE

Dr. Sheetal Kapoor

Commerce as a stream of education can be defined as a study of trade and business activities such as the exchange of goods and services from producer to final consumer. Commerce, an evergreen stream offers huge opportunities to students to make up their careers after Class XII. With the rapid opening of our markets to foreign companies, rising GDP and a number of reforms carried by the Indian government, the students of Commerce can expect huge job opportunities in this area. Growing service sector offers enormous job opportunities in accounting, banking, insurance, advertising, mass communication, Public Relations, stock markets, tourism, retailing, business law, international business, marketing research, taxation, teaching, etc.

The increasing number of career choices creates a situation of dissonance in the minds of the students and therefore clarity about what they should do after Class XII is very much required. Commerce students by now are familiar with subjects such as, Accountancy, Business Studies, Economics and Mathematics/Information Technology/Mass Media (optional in many schools). Therefore at this juncture it is required that a student should understand its true potential and must try to hone up its skills in those areas. To make you feel comfortable in making the right choice for your career I am going to discuss the various career opportunities available to you in the Commerce Stream. We can categorise the various courses which a Commerce student can opt for into various segments such as Graduation Courses and Professional Courses:

A. Graduation Course

1. Bachelor of Commerce (B COM) course:

It is the most popular undergraduate course after 12th as this course enables and equips the students to acquire conceptual knowledge about the various business concepts and practices and enables them to apply various tools to face up the challenges as business managers. It offers lucrative career opportunities in the field of management, banking, insurance, marketing, accounting, advertising, finance, taxation. To get admission in a regular college in Delhi University students can opt for B Com (Hons) or B Com (Prog). SRCC last year had a cutoff of 98% for the Commerce students. Most of the best colleges in Delhi University have a cut off percentage above 90%. Maths as a subject for doing B Com (Prog) Course is not compulsory but for Hons students it is essential as they have to study a Paper on Business Mathematics. If you are not able to get an admission in any of the University Colleges don't get disheartened as you can apply for a Correspondence Course through School of Open Learning from Delhi University.

Popular colleges: Shri Ram College of Commerce, University of Delhi (New Delhi), Lady Shri Ram College University of Delhi (New Delhi), Kamala Nehru College University of Delhi (New Delhi), Xavier's College (Kolkata), Narsee

RE-ENERGISING INDIA'S...

Modi has established a personal rapport with President Xi Jing Ping through his visit to India and Prime Minister's own return visit. Wide ranging economic cooperation is under way embracing important areas of infrastructure, energy, investment, technology, trade, information technology, smart cities, sister cities and provinces and exchanges in matters of skill development. A very large number of bilateral agreements signed in Beijing and the MOUs between the business delegations in Shanghai demonstrated tangible achievements and lent credibility in particular to Chinese offer of investment of 20 billion dollars during Xi's visit by further shaping up of 10 billion dollar investment after Prime Ministers visit. Prime Minister Modi candidly raised during these visits problematic aspects of bilateral relations with China, such as the undemarcated border, lack of progress in the Special Representative Talks for resolving border dispute, Chinese nuclear and defence support to Pakistan and related issue of terrorism. Climate change and India's due role in the UN Security Council were discussed by the two leaders. The outcome of these discussions was also positive towards better understanding of sensitivities and concerns. Prime Minister was frank in his public speeches about India's expectations from this most critical bilateral relationship. Indian foreign policy also emerged to be responsive to India's aspirations not just as a balancing but a leading power. This meant forthrightness in forging close ties with all key partners in Asia such as Japan, South Korea, Vietnam, ASEAN and Australia. The growing strategic partnerships with these nations have a dynamics of their own and reflect India's will to straddle contradictions that might come in the way due to relationships of these powers with others in Asia and beyond. In globalised world dynamic relations with all countries are imperative for India as the largest democracy endowed with the biggest youth dividend, unique assimilative pluralism of its multi-ethnic and multi-religious society and the urge of its 1.26 billion people for better livelihood and opportunities. The total thrust of Prime Minister Modi's foreign policy has been very clear in this regard - India first and 'sabbkasaath, sabkavikas'. Naturally in this journey imparting greater and greater content to relations with a highly developed economy like Japan figured prominently. Prime Minister Modi paid a thoroughly successful visit there, early in his term, reinforcing strong cultural links, invigorating economic partnerships in numerous fields and raising mutual understanding about strategic environment in the Indo-Pacific. Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe appreciated and reciprocated it with promising close bonds and warm personal rapport from which there is a great deal to expect in tangible ways in coming years. Almost similar assessment commends itself for the visits to Australia, South Korea, Mongolia and Myanmar. 'Neighbourhood first' is likely to remain the watchword in coming months and years. Prime Minister promised in UN General Assembly India's readiness for dialogue with Pakistan but it is up to Pakistan to make it conducive for such a dialogue. It is hoped that enormous gains from all these visits will give India its rightful place among the comity of nations.
