CIVIL SERVICES: YOU CAN ALSO MAKE IT!

10 FROM J&K CRACK CIVIL SERVICES EXAM State's Gen Next are in the news for totally different and positive reasons now

Jammu & Kashmir's young have been in the news for the wrong reasons in recent years — tragic deaths, stone-throwing, clashes with security forces in the aftermath of a long spell of insurgency.

But they are making news for totally different and positive reasons now- ten of them have cracked the prestigious All-India Civil Services Examination, the results of which were announced recently.

Five of the ten are from Kashmir Valley which is gradually coming out of two decades of insurgency. One is a Muslim woman from the Valley and another a Gujjar boy from Poonch.

The lure of Civil Services received a boost when Shah Faisal topped the national list of successful candidates in 2010. He has become a poster boy for youth searching for career options.

Well done, Omar tweets

Jammu and Kashmir Chief Minister Omar Abdullah congratulated the 10 for the job "well done".

Syed Aabid Rashid (30) appeared for the Union Public Service Commission Civil Services Examination the first time in 2010 when he secured the 180th rank and was awarded the Indian Police Service.

This year, he made another attempt to get an improved rank and made it to the top 25.

Another name in the list from this State is Sehrish Asghar, who studied medicine and had already made a mark last year when she topped the State civil services. "Nothing is impossible", the 26-year old said.

"Work hard and success will touch your feet. You just need proper guidance and planning to crack the Civil Services Examination", she said.

Ranked 434, Bashir Ahmad Bhat is son of a shopkeeper and hails from north Kashmir's Sopore town, famous for apples. It had also been hit by insurgency. For 28-year-old Qazi Salman, who hails from Magam area of Kupwara, close to the Line of Control, Mr. Faisal was the inspiration.

Inam-ul-Haq Mengnoo, an orthopaedic doctor from South Kashmir's Shopian district, bagged the 280th position while Manazir Jeelani Samoon of Gurez region of north Kashmir's Bandipora, which lies close to the LoC, secured the 451st position.

A NURSE FULFILLS DREAM OF A CAREER IN IAS

She may probably be the first nurse to get into the hallowed Civil Service and she is excited that her success would inspire more professional nurses to take the road to the Indian Administrative Service (IAS).

Annie Kanmani Joy (26) who hails from a farmer's family of Pampakuda in Ernakulam district, has secured the 65th rank in the just-published Civil Service Exam results. Ms. Joy holds a B.Sc. (Nursing) degree from the Trivandrum Medical College.

She was placed at 580th position in last year's Civil Service exam and selected as a member of the Indian Civil Accounts Service (ICAS).

A JOURNEY FROM MADURAI TO MUSSOORIE

Pollampatti, a small village about 15 Km from Madurai is abuzz with excitement as a 27 year old determined woman from here has come out with flying colours in this year's Civil Services examinations.

C. Indhumathy is set to become a role model for IAS aspirants in this region as she has secured the 151st rank in the All - India Civil Services examinations.

The Madurai girl, who belongs to OBC category, said her advice to Civil Services aspirants is "make the right choice of optional subjects". "We have to first make a self-analysis and select subjects based on interest and not by other's suggestions. With thorough planning and systematic preparation, you will succeed", she says.

CAREERS IN BIOTECHNOLOGY

— Dinakar M. Salunke and B. D. Vashisth

Biotechnology is a combination of science and technology that pertains to life. It is a science of knowing the essence of life and managing the same by the use of technology and/or using the same in other technologies. Biotechnology is a scientific discipline where all other disciplines intermingle. All branches of science converge at molecular level and, thus, the biotechnology is open for all the students of science: biologists, chemists, physicists, doctors and engineers. The systems that combine biological molecules on the one hand, and physical devices and processes on the other, have a huge potential for many applications. Indeed, biotechnology interfaces all disciplines of science.

One can enter the biotechnology field at different stages of education. Admission to IITs for B. Tech. or integrated M. Sc. is possible through the IIT-JEE after schooling at 10+2. Many other institutions also offer admission to their courses on the basis of the rankings in IIT-JEE. Admission to the graduate, post-graduate and integrated post-graduate courses in biotechnology can be secured through various entrance examinations held by different institutions and through other national or state level entrance examinations. Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU) conducts an entrance examination at all-India level for admission to PG courses, in a large number of Universities. A Bachelor of Science in any discipline with a minimum of 55% of marks or equivalent grade would be eligible to apply for the said entrance examination for admission to a post-graduate course in biotechnology. For M.Tech. Biotechnology the requirement is 60% in B.Tech/BE or M.Sc. Indian Institutes of Technology (IITs) and some engineering colleges admit students for B. Tech. and integrated M. Sc. courses as well. One may opt for Biotechnology at PG level or even at Ph. D. level after completing PG course in any branch of science. Many state, central as well as private Universities provide courses in biotechnology at different levels. In the modern era, biotechnology is one of the greatest intellectual enterprises of humankind and has immense utility for well being of the people. Government of India has a separate department to promote Biotechnology within the Ministry of Science and Technology, called Department of Biotechnology (DBT). DBT promotes higher education, research and development in this and allied areas. It also promotes industrial development in biotechnology. One can visit its website at www.dbtindia.nic.in for further information. It supports PG course in biotechnology in a large number of Universities/Institutions across the entire country; a list is available on DBT website. Many autonomous institutions have been and are being established by DBT to explore the untrodden paths in the field of Biotechnology. Each of these institutions is working in the wide range of frontier areas of biotechnology including, for example, molecular biology, genetics, cell biology, biochemistry, plant and animal sciences, food technology, genomics and proteomics, biophysics, structural biology, biochemical and biomedical engineering, bioinformatics, microbiology, immunology and virology. The Institutions with core support from the Department of Biotechnology include:

- Centre for DNA Fingerprinting and Diagnostics (CDFD), Hyderabad
- Institute of Bioresources and Sustainable Development (IBSD), Imphal
- Institute of Life Sciences

- (ILS), Bhubaneswar
- National Agri-Food Biotechnology Institution (NABI), Mohali
- National Brain Research Centre (NBRC), Manesar
- National Centre For Cell Sciences (NCCS), Pune
- National Institute of Plant Genome Research (NIPGR), New Delhi
- National Institute of Animal Biotechnology (NIAB), Hyderabad
- National Institute of Biomedical Genomics (NIBMG), Kalyani
- National Institute of Immunology (NII), New Delhi
- Rajiv Gandhi Centre For Biotechnology (RGCB), Thiruvananthapuram
- Regional Centre for Biotechnology (RCB), NCR, Gurgaon
- Translational Health Science & Technology Institute (THSTI), NCR, Gurgaon
- Institute of Stem Cell Biology and Regenerative Medicine (InStem), Bangalore

Careers in....

Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR), Department of Science and Technology (DST), Ministry of Human Resource Development (MHRD), and Department of Atomic Energy also support many institutions that focus on education and research in different aspects of biotechnology. These institutions offer excellent opportunities for research leading to Ph. D. degree in Biotechnology. Some of them offer admission to PG courses as well. Admissions to Ph. D. courses are through CSIR-UGC NET or other national level entrance examinations conducted by different institutions and organisations. Many of the Institutions conduct their own entrance examination and many others admit Research Fellows on the basis of CSIR-UGC NET.

Biotechnology innovation chain consists of several steps. Discovery-based fundamental research could result in leads that may have potential for technological development. Identifying this potential and converting the leads into viable intellectual property is the next important step. The leads which pass this step could then be subjected to developmental work towards potential for commercialization. Each of these steps has its own complexities and sophistication. Therefore, biotechnology sector requires human resource with unique skills in a variety of areas in a multidisciplinary environment in order to enable meaningful innovation for societal use. Unlike many other industrial developments, biotechnology primarily deals with human life and therefore implications of developments in this field are far reaching. There is a need to train people with ethical and regulatory aspects as well. Training in protection of intellectual property is another required area. Strategically designed courses and domain-specific training programmes are required in order to produce, for example, specialists in regulatory sciences, innovation policy professionals, industrial quality assurance specialists, physician scientists and professionals in agriculture, climate change and energy. Establishment of the Regional Centre for Biotechnology (RCB), an institution of education, training and research by the Department of Biotechnology, Government of India under the auspices of UNESCO (www.rcb.res.in), was highly pertinent in this context. RCB's mandate is to develop industry-compatible human resource in all aspects of biotechnology in a state-of-art research milieu.

Biotechnology is an emerging area of science which will keep the options of corporate sector as well as traditional science open. Biotechnology offers wide career opportunities in biotech industry, agriculture and allied industries, pharmaceutical companies, food processing industries and research. Those who seek early placements may do so after graduation. One can join biotechnology industry, pharmaceutical, chemical or agricultural and allied industries in production, sales and management related jobs. Even infrastructure industry, manufacturing machinery and equipments needed in bioprocesses may absorb the biotechnologists. Biotech industry includes production companies based on biotechnological processes and devices. It includes manufacturers of machinery and equipments required in biotechnological processes as well.

Teaching at all levels in educational institutions provides an opportunity for biotechnologists since the area is in growth phase and is still expanding. Research and development is another option which has vast opportunities to satisfy ones quest for knowledge along with providing livelihood. After completing PG degree one can join as Junior Research Fellow (JRF) and work towards Ph. D. degree in a multidisciplinary area of biotechnology. Those who have completed their Ph. D. degrees may go for post-doctoral fellowships in or out of India and contribute towards Research & Development. Opportunities after 3/4 years of research experience as post-doctoral fellow with excellent publications/patents record can be immense. It can get scientific positions or faculty positions in any of the institutes engaged in R&D.

Considering that biotechnology involves advanced scientific skills, better career opportunities exist for those qualified at higher level of education. Demand is particularly high for those who have acquired skills in the gap areas. Those who have completed Ph. D. in any field linked with biotechnology are easily absorbed in industrial R&D or academic/research institutions. Particularly, those having post-doctoral experiences of about 3 years with proven record of research accomplishment, can begin at very senior level.

Dr Dinakar M Salunke is the Executive Director and Mr B. D. Vashisth is the Registrar of the Regional Centre for Biotechnology in Gurgaon.
