MICROFINANCE IN NORTH-EASTERN STATES

Dr. Sarmistha Sarma

Microfinance is the provision of financial services to low-income clients or solidarity lending groups including consumers and the self-employed, who traditionally lack access to banking and related services. From a global perspective micro finance has entered a sustainable phase after the global financial crisis. It has also expanded over the years. India also has woken up to recognize the role of Microfinance. As of 30th June 2014, aggregate gross loan portfolio (GLP) of MFIs in India stood at Rs 261.5 bn (excluding non-performing portfolio (PAR > 180 days) in Andhra Pradesh which is roughly Rs 28 bn), growth of 44% over Q1 financial year 2013-2014.The medium size MFIs (GLP > Rs 1-5 bn) registered highest growth of 47% over Q1 financial year 2013-2014.

The role of microfinance in financial inclusion is recognized globally. In India as well, Microfinance Institutions (MFIs) have considerably bridged the gap in financial inclusion. One of the financially excluded region of India is the North Eastern part comprising of the eight states of Assam, Arunachal Pradesh, Meghalaya, Mizoram, Nagaland, Manipur, Tripura and Sikkim. The region is made up of diverse ethnic groups, cultures and languages. In terms of banking, the region is the most financially excluded part in the country. The finding of the CRISIL INCLUSIX provides that North Eastern states lag behind other states in India. The North eastern region scores 28.5 in INCLUSIX 2011 as against 26.5 in INCLUSIX 2010 and 23.8 in INCLUSIX 2009.In terms of branch penetration (BP) North eastern Region scored 29.9 in 2011 as against 27.7 in 2009, for Credit Penetration (CP) it scored 21.6 in 2011 as against 17.9 and in terms of deposit penetration (DP) it scored 36.5 in 2011 as against 27.7 in 2009.

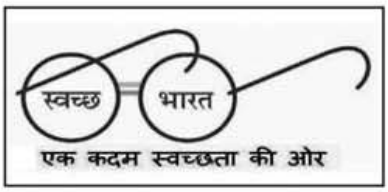
Looking at the coefficient of variation in financial inclusion across districts again North Eastern Region lags behind. It is 0.44 in 2011 as against 0.46 in 2010 and 0.48 in 2009.

This is where the role of Microfinance Institutions assumes strategic importance.

Status of North Eastern States in Microfinance

As per the data available from the Microfinance Institutions Network (MFIN) the regional distribution of Gross Loan Portfolio (GLP) as on 30th June 2014 suggests that share of eastern region in the GLP is 27%, south is at 33% and west and north at 20%. Among the North eastern Region Assam stands at 6% of the share in the Gross Loan portfolio (GLP).Manipur with 47.0% ,Assam with 9.1% and Sikkim with 5.0% from the North Eastern States are among the states with the highest growth rates along with other states like Himachal Pradesh with 39.5% Jammu and Kashmir with 16.2% and Delhi with 13.1% in the Q1 financial year 2014-2015 over Q4 financial year 2013-2014.

As of 30th June 2014, MFIs reached over 26.5 mn clients in India. Compared with Q1 financial year 2013-2014, clients grew by 23%. The state wise distribution of the clients shows that Tamil Nadu with 16% and West Bengal with 15% are the top states in client reach. From the North Eastern States the state of Assam had 4% client reach of the MFIs in the same period.



The top states in terms of loan disbursement are West Bengal, Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Maharashtra and Uttar Pradesh for the Q1 of financial year 2014-2015 .These states accounted approximately 60% of disbursements (loan amount disbursed) by MFIs.

Role of indigenous institutions in providing microfinance and social security

There are several indigenous institutions in North Eastern States that have played a pivotal role in providing microcredit and social security to the members. These institutions have been in existence since many years and are a part of the culture of the place. These indigenous institutions are primarily Rotating Saving and Credit Associations (RoSCAs) eg. Marups in Manipur and Accumulating Saving and Credit Associations (ASCAs) eg. Sonchay, Somobay, Got in Assam. Other institutions such as Namghars, Pujaghars, Shinglups, and Mahari mainly provide social security in emergency situations such as death and the funds are also utilized in the common welfare of the community. A brief description of these institutions are as under:

- Namghars and Pujaghars which are found in Assam. A compulsory deposit of a fixed amount by each household is made to the Namghar (prayer hall). It is lent out at zero or lower than market interest rates to address emergencies.
- Marups in Manipur are Rotating Savings and Credit Associations

CAREER IN SPACE SCIENCES

Dr. S. S. Verma

Space Science is one of the most exciting career options that are adored by most of the new generation students in India and abroad. It has many scopes to build a successful career and can help one to get designated as an engineer or scientist in various departments of astronomical and space science. The new generation youths always crave forward to go after a career full of glamour and adventure. One such career that can be said to have both these aspects is that of the career in space science. With a great success in space endeavors of satellite launching and recently in the space missions like Chandrayaan and Manglayaan by Indian scientists have infused space enthusiasm in many youth of the country. The new discoveries about the solar system or studying satellites and their connection with the Earth have urged the dream within young generation to pursue career in space science. With a changing educational preference scenario in the country, almost half of engineering education seats are going vacant and with a similar situation in case of professional medical and dental courses also and least to say about other less appreciated professional courses. Student's preferences have already taken a U-turn within a period of twenty years or so to join science education streams with a hope that it will take them towards better career avenues.

Therefore, recent success in space science and technology has further proved a motivating factor to influence young generation to opt for science education at higher level. Students want to make their career in space the fact that the majority of careers take place here on the ground; only a relatively small number of people actually get the opportunity to leave the Earth for the limitless boundaries of space. For each astronaut who makes it to space, there are thousands of support people on the ground without whose skills, knowledge and efforts, the mission would not have been possible. Further, establishing yourself in space careers would involve long years of study, and the competition for jobs is stiff, while salaries are reasonable. Therefore, if you are considering a career in space, you must be motivated by a love of discovery and the pursuit of knowledge.

Studying Space Science

Space technology, or space science, is a broad term in itself, which includes astronomy and astrophysics, parametary atmospheres and aeronomy, earth sciences, and solar system studies. Initially, these four disciplines were broadly classified under astronomy, but the recent boom has led to the categorization of space science into numerous sub-branches, some of them being cosmology, stellar science, planetary science, astronomy, astrology, and so on. This branch of science, or engineering, almost every part of our lives, be it weather forecasting, satellite TV, global communications or satellite navigation. A career in the space industry could include any of these areas and much more. Careers in space science may include working on a new satellite or developing technology to map a distant planet. You could be helping to make new discoveries about our solar system or using satellites to study pollution on Earth. You might be connecting the world's most remote communities or helping in disaster management.

Astronomy is the scientific study of the universe, especially of the motions, positions, sizes, composition, and behavior of celestial objects. It is also the means by which latitudes and longitudes of places on the Earth's surface are determined, allowing sea vessels to navigate. Astrophysics is the branch of astronomy that deals with the study of the physical nature of stars, galaxies, and the universe. Astrobiology is about how life begins and evolves, and the possibility of its existence anywhere other than the Earth. Astrochemistry is the study of the chemical processes in space, especially those of organic molecules needed for life as we and weather satellites. To become an astronaut, you will have to demonstrate a high level of fitness and the right mental attitude to spend long periods of time in space. Scientific and technical competence is essential, particularly in engineering, physics, mathematics, chemistry and biology or earth sciences. Many mission specialists also have a PhD. Being an astronaut is not an occupation to be treated lightly, or considered as a singular goal. Astronaut training in India is yet to begin, but the process is being put in place. When there is manned space flight in India, the first candidates could come from one of the armed forces, or they could be scientists from ISRO, etc.

Educational pathways

Because the opportunities are so varied, the qualifications needed to work in the space industry also vary considerably. It provides employment for people with a wide range of skills and qualifications, including electrical and mechanical engineering, IT and software systems, physics, mathematics, space science or aerospace engineering. Many of those working in space science have a PhD. If you have any intention of establishing yourself in the space industry, aim for plus two/equivalent with physics, chemistry and mathematics. If this is followed by physics major or physics honours degree, you can build a career in astrophysics or astronomy after MSc in Physics. Alternatively, you can opt for an integrated MSc in Physics at institutions like the IISER, NISER, Bhubaneswar, UM

Future growth of microfinance in North Eastern States

Compared to the rest of India the microfinance movement started late in the North Eastern States. MFIs have a network of 10,074 branches with over 46,000 loan officers across 30 states and union territories in India. Branches of MFIs grew by 9% compared with Q1 financial year 2013-2014. West Bengal, Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka and Maharashtra are top states in terms of number of branches. Maharashtra, MP, Tamil Nadu, Gujarat and Karnataka have the highest concentration of MFIs.

During Q1 financial year14-15, MFIs disbursed over 6.3 mn loans worth Rs 94.2 bn across India . Compared with Q1 financial year 13-14, number of loans disbursed grew by 34% and loan amount disbursed by 48%. Average loan amount disbursed per account stood at Rs 14,936. The top MFIs of India in terms of loan disbursed during Q1 financial year 2014-2015 (Rs bn) are Bandhan (25.4), SKS (11.6), Janalakshmi (7.1), Ujjivan (6.7), Equitas (4.8), Spandana (4.8), Muthoot (3.3), Grama Vidiyal(2.9), GFSPL(2.8), Share(2.7).Among these the MFIs working in some of the states of North East are :-

In Assam there are 6 MFIs viz. Arohan, ASA, Bandhan, Share, Ujjivan and VFS.In Meghalaya 3 MFIs viz. Bandhan, BSFL and Ujjivan are present. In Sikkim 2 MFIs viz. Bandhan and BSFL are present. In Manipur and Mizoram there is only Bandhan which is working. The data suggests that there is a need to expand the MFI network in the North Eastern Region for socio economic development at par with the rest of the country.

it up with a PhD. Admission would be through competitive examinations. Graduates with the four-year (a) B. Tech Aerospace Engineering (b) B.Tech in Avionics or (c) B. Tech Physical at the Indian Institute of Space Science & Technology (under Department of Space, Govt of India) at Thiruvananthapuram (www.iist.ac.in) and fulfilling minimum specified academic performance will be absorbed in the Indian Space Research Organisation (www.isro.gov.in). Postgraduate degree programmes in astronomy/astrophysics or space science are few and far between, though some universities offer astrophysics as a specialization in their postgraduate physics degree programmes. An engineering degree in any discipline would also provide the foundation for a PhD in Astronomy or Astrophysics. Admission to PhD programmes would normally be through an entrance examination. Indian Institute of Space Science and Technology (IIST) (Department of Space, Government of India), Thiruvananthapuram (Kerla), is Asia's first Space Institute and the first in the world to offer the complete range of undergraduate, post graduate, doctoral programmes with specific focus to space science, technology and applications. The minimum education qualification for joining bachelor programs in Space Science at IIST is + 2 Science with Physics, Chemistry and Maths. The Institute has the unique mandate of encouraging and equipping brilliant youngsters from all parts of the country to take up a career as Scientist/Engineer in the Indian Space Research Organization. The candidates are short listed on the basis of the merit lists of IIT JEE examination. The admission is finally granted on the basis of personal counseling. The students who obtain 1st class are provided placements in ISRO as a Scientist or Engineer with a lucrative pay package.

Career prospects

Space scientists may work as faculty at universities, pursue independent research, publish papers, guide research students, teach classes, sit on academic committees, referee papers for publication, and write proposals to fund their research. Astronomers/astrophysicists work in government/national observatories, space research agencies, planetariums, science museums, and may also work in mass media and science communication. Other opportunities are in government and institutions such as Indian Space Research Organization and DRDO (Defense Research & Development Organization. Astronomers may be employed by organizations and companies to design and manufacture telescopes, write software, and do many other tasks in support of space laboratories/ missions, ground-based observatories and data processing and analysis. Along with an opportunity to uncover the mysteries of the universe and study interstellar bodies and phenomenon, astronomy or astrophysics teaches one observational, computational, mathematical and logical skills needed to analyze and solve complex problems. It also teaches the ability to interpret, explain and effectively communicate complex scientific data. Employers in many fields, including medical physics, geophysics, oil and gas exploration, find these skills particularly attractive. Technical writing is also a possibility for space scientists. To build up a successful and prosperous career in space science one must first develop his personality and nourish his skills and abilities to be prepared for such a responsible career. Some of the many prominent attributes expected in any candidate willing to pursue a career in space science are as follows:

- Should be able to face and deal with danger or fear without flinching
- Should have good presence of mind
- Should be dedicated and responsible with his works and duties
- Should have in-depth knowledge in computer and related technologies
- Should have the power or capacity to tolerate unfavorable conditions

Space technology education deals with the design, development and application of space science and technology for application in national and regional development and environment management. Technologies such as weather forecasting, remote sensing, GPS systems, satellite television, and some long distance communications systems are also dependent on space infrastructure. Further, space technology is no longer reserved for national and international space agencies and big companies. It is gradually becoming a field of increasing interest to a wide range of private industries, including small and medium-sized companies. There is a high demand for candidates with strong skills and qualifications within space technology. These skills and qualifications are also required in many high technology companies.
