

SPECIAL NEEDS EDUCATION : A 'SPECIAL' CAREER

Nitya Sai Soumya

It is only over the last few years that Special Needs Education has gained momentum in India. While it has not yet achieved its glorious best, a revolution in the field is definitely underway. This indicates bright career opportunities for special educators.

Every child with special needs has the right for education, despite the child's special needs. To reinforce its commitment to protect the right and to promote inclusive education, the Government of India devised policies like Sarva Siksha Abhiyan and Right to Education Act. Several non-profit organisations are doing their bit by encouraging educational institutions to open up for these children and cater to their needs. Then, there is an increased awareness about Special Needs Education in the society and people are no longer shying away from seeking the professional support of special educators if necessary. With all this, the field of Special Needs Education has today become a promising career destination for the youth.

Special Needs Education (SEN):

Special Needs Education or Special Education is instructional methodology employed to impart basic literacy to children with special needs. 'Children with special needs' are children with learning disabilities, speech or language impairment, mental retardation, emotional instability, physical disabilities, autism or the likewise. These children cannot cope with the regular school curriculum, at least without the intervention of a special educator.

Special education aims at holistic development of children with special needs. Apart from imparting basic literacy, it includes providing support to help them adjust to school, family and other social set-ups, improve communication and pick-up skills required to lead life independently. Its role extends to encouraging the family and community to reduce barriers in the way of the child's effort to live life independently.

Special Education takes a different approach to education, based on the unique requirements and limitations of each child.

Life as a special educator:

Special educators study the strengths and limitations of individual students and plan unique curriculum for each of them. Based on the disability of the students, they teach them sign language, lip reading, motor skills and the likewise, one-on-one or in group set-up. They use play methods and audiovisual material to stimulate interest in learning.

Special educators employ a different method of instruction and use specialised instructional material to develop capabilities of the student to the maximum extent. They experiment with different types of teaching techniques to identify the one that suits a particular child. Sometimes, they even develop new techniques to help the child.

Career in SEN:

To be able to teach children with special needs, an aspiring special educator has to undergo special training. At a broad level, the career opportunities in SEN are teaching and curriculum development.

According to a study conducted by the Institute of Applied Manpower Research (IAMR), by 2016, the shortfall for trained professionals in the disability sector will be 1, 04,531. So there is dearth of opportunities for special educators in the future.

Special educators work hand-in-hand with parents, other teachers, social workers, school psychologists, occupational and physical therapists, school administrators to ensure the well-being of their students.

Special educators can find employment in public or private special schools, rehabilitation centres and hospitals. Though the growth in this field can be slow, career provides immense professional satisfaction. After a few years of experience, special education teachers can assume administrative or supervisory positions in their organisations. Teaching and research are other options for these professionals. Consulting service is also becoming a

PUBLIC SERVICE BROADCASTING

Suresh Verma

On November 12, 1947; at 3:30 pm. Mahatma Gandhi visited the AIR Delhi located near the Parliament house for his first and only radio broadcast from a Studio. He was accompanied by the then Union Health Minister Rajkumari Amrit Kaur as the representative of the Government of India. On reaching the studios Gandhiji's first response was "Radio is a miracle. In it I see Shakti, the miraculous power of God."

An ambience of a prayer meeting was created for this historic broadcast. A special wooden 'takhtposh' (A wooden stage) was crafted and microphone was placed on it as it was used for his daily prayer meetings at Birla House. This special broadcast was organized to address more than two lakh refugees from Pakistan who gathered at a camp in the town of Kurukshetra. They were estranged from their own cities, towns, villages and homes as well, many of their family members were separated. They were facing a very tough situation.

Gandhiji's broadcast lasted for about 20 minutes in which he appealed to the refugees to face the situation with patience and solidarity. Incidentally this was the day of Diwali. Gandhiji said, "Today is Diwali but there seems no 'chirags' (rays of light) for you. We would best celebrate this Diwali by rendering our services to you and you should live in your camps with brotherhood and treating and the fragrance of brotherhood spread all over. The broadcast was followed by "Vande Matram."

Since November 12, 2001, the day is declared and celebrated as the National Public Service Broadcasting Day to commemorate Gandhiji's visit to AIR. The term Public Service Broadcast refers to broadcasting which is intended for the public by the government nor by any other self- ish motive. This type of broadcasting not only provides information, education and entertainment but also keeps in mind the interests of the nation and the objective is to bring a positive change in the public behavior.

It was in 1922 that the newly elected American President Warren G. Harding created history in broadcasting by being the first President to deliver an address on the Radio. The tradition continued with Franklin D. Roosevelt who delivered some exemplary radio addresses in the 1930s and 40s which boosted the morale of his countrymen during the global recession and the Second World War. In 1927 Indian Broadcasting was inaugurated by the then Viceroy of India, Lord Irwin in Bombay with his address to countrymen. Post independence, all presidents addressed to the nation on the eve of Republic day from All India Radio. The recent initiative by the Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi to address the nation through his unique programme 'Man Ki Baat' on radio has established that the magic of this medium is still intact and that it cannot be replaced by any other medium. His modest appeal to all the sections of the society, inspirational messages for the youth of the country has made this radio initiative a very commendable and affirmative one. Is radio merely a sound wave? Certainly film songs, or melodious interactions with the audience, or a newsreading, or discussing some current issues, or even more than catering to the target of information, education and entertainment. Its real character is displayed in its motto 'Bahujan Hitay Bahujan Sukhay' (For the prosperity and welfare of many), and hence implemented through a perfect blend of words, music, sound effects and silence.

The power of radio can really be understood and developed in a country like India because it has been a land of 'Shruti' tradition (based on hearing).

The All India Radio has achieved phenomenal growth post-independence and has reached almost every nook and corner of the subcontinent in the last few decades. The radio transmissions were deemed so important that every listener was individually attached to it. There have been a lot of technical advancements in AIR with the introduction of Medium and Short Wave. The recent evolution of FM, internet and Satellite Radio has almost brought a new revolution in the course of communication. The significance of Radio as a career of education and information in a developing country like India is invaluable. Nobody can deny this fact that Radio as a mass medium has an unbound capacity to shape, motivate and rejuvenate a consciousness concerning our culture, traditions and transmit the task of development in true sense. Adding to this, the radio broadcast has immense potential in strengthening the social and national integrity, and providing a platform to the scientific and technological innovations. Through its vast range of programming genres - News, Music, Discussion, Interview, Fiction, Drama, Educational and Foreign Broadcast etc., it has unique reach to a vast range of audience from all age groups. The kind of literary and cultural heritage that the AIR holds, remain unparalleled. AIR is one of the world's largest broadcasting organizations. Its reach covers almost 92 percent of the Indian subcontinent through its 414 distinct radio stations for a vast population of 1.25 billion. No other radio network of the world can even match its unique transmission in at least 23 languages and 146 dialects. The External Services Division reaches to almost 100 countries in 11 Indian and 16 foreign languages. The major task forward would be to capitalize this uniqueness so that this resource can truly shape the course of national development in the times to come.
