Education Emergency:

57 million out of school children are undeniably hardest to reach and remain at a high risk of exclusion. For over three decades, I have been strongly advocating that education and eradication of child labour are two sides of the same coin. Children cannot attend school till they continue to work. Education is one of the most effective, preventive and curative tools to combat child labour.

We know that education is the key to human development, sustainable economic growth of countries and enabler for personal emancipation. Education, my friends for sure saves lives. A child born to an educated mother is twice as likely to survive past the age of 5. Of course, we are talking about free, meaningful and equitable education of good quality. This would require 18 billion $ or 3 day equivalent of the global defence expenditure or 1/4th of the money that Europeans spend on cosmetics. Are we really so poor and crippled that we cannot take gun and tools away from the tiny hands of our children and replace them with books and pens?

The Governments must spend at least 6% of their respective GDPs on education and the donors must fulfill their commitments towards education. New innovative methods must be explored to bridge the gap in financing education for all. Businesses have to step forward as well.

Enforcement Emergency:

We could be proud to say that 179 countries have ratified ILO Convention, 182 on worst forms of child labour while 166 nations have ratified ILO Convention 138 on minimum age of employment. By now most countries have domestic legislations at least to combat and criminalize the worst forms of child labour and legal provisions that guarantee education, but I would like to emphasise over here that the legal and judicial mechanisms in the countries remain grossly under-utilised. It is appalling that laws related to slavery and trafficking are not enforced and implemented properly. The number of prosecutions and convictions in cases related to child labour, trafficking of children for forced labour and slavery are abysmally low. This clearly reflects the lack of political will to address these issues. We still have a soft approach on the perpetrators of crimes like worst forms of child labour. The law enforcement agencies in various countries are both understaffed and lack the capacity and knowledge to effectively deal with these crimes. This requires systematic and sustained efforts on the part of Governments. The civil society must also be equally proactive in bringing up such cases before the courts of law. The law enforcement machinery worldwide needs a compulsory overhaul in terms of capacity, robust accountability framework, fast track trial/ speedy justice delivery for the victims, composite and comprehensive rehabilitation of child labourers and their families into mainstream society. Inter-agency collaboration at all levels with integrated response entailing convergence of policy and programmatic interventions at grassroots level is a must have in the present times. Above all the Global Reporting

Children are the foundation of a bright and prosperous tomorrow. If we fail to nurture them today, we cannot hope the tomorrow to be any better. As you read this, 168 million child labourers are losing their childhood to exploitation and abuse across the globe. This is certainly not the world that we would like to leave for our children.

It has been proven beyond reasonable doubts that wherever (a) the laws have been in place and implemented well (b) education has been prioritised; (c) social protection programmes have been running; (d), conditional cash transfers and other incentives were rolled out; (e) civil society was vigilant and active; (f) trade unions took up the fight; (g) businesses were responsive; (h) government ministries and departments were well synchronised; (i) financial and technical support was provided by donors and UN Agencies and (j) consumers have had a strong say, child labour has declined substantially.

It is not possible to reinvent the wheel every time. We have plethora of best practices of promoting child rights particularly their right to be free from exploitation and attaining State sponsored quality education to learn from. Be it Bolsa Familia of Brazil or the largest school feeding programme like the Mid-Day Meal Scheme in India; such initiatives go a long way in keeping the children at a place that they truly belong i.e. SCHOOL.

A child labourer cannot afford to wait therefore we as global citizens and stakeholders must shoulder the responsibility of tiding over the Six Emergencies or the 6Es. These are:

INCLUSIVE EDUCATION IN NORTH EAST INDIA

Rajeev Bhardwaj

With the adoption of the Salamanca Statement in 1994 (UNESCO) a large number of developing countries have reformulated their policies to promote the inclusion of Child with Special Needs (CWSN) into mainstream schools.

Though a large number of developed countries like USA, Canada, Australia, have policies/laws for promotion of "inclusive education," despite developing countries like India continue to provide education to CWSN in "segregated schools" till recent times.

Background of Inclusive Education in India:

The Kothari Commission, 1964, recommended for sending the CWSN in the mainstream school. Through the Integrated Education of Disabled Child (IEDC) Scheme, Government of India made an attempt for "integrated education" of CWSN in 1974.

Thus the rights of the children between the ages of 6-14 for the education were ensured. The IEDC Scheme was designed to promote the integration of students with mild to moderate disabilities into regular schools.

Further it stressed for the retention of CWSN in the regular school system. The National Policy on Education 1986 continued the spirit of IEDC Scheme and stated "mild disabilities should be included in the mainstream classroom".

However the IEDC scheme was to be revised in 1992 due to some shortcomings in the scheme. Under the revised scheme, 100% assistance was made available to schools involved in the "integration" of students with disabilities.

Further section 26 of the Person with Disabilities (Equal Opportunities, Protection of Rights & Full Participation) Act, 1995 suggested for providing free education to CWSN and thus made an another attempt to promote for their inclusive education.

The Scheme of Inclusive Education for Disabled at Secondary Stage (IEDSS) was launched in 2009-2010 by Government of India enabling all students with disabilities for completing secondary schooling (classes IX to XII) in an inclusive environment. This scheme replaced the IEDC Scheme. However the IEDSS

Present scenario of Inclusive Education in North East India:

There are 2, 68, 10,557 Persons with Disabilities (PWDs) in India as per census 2011, constituting 2.21% of total population. The enrollment of CWSN in the mainstream schools of North Eastern region is as follows:

Sl. No.	Name of the State	PWD of Age Group 5-9 years	PWD of Age Group 10-19 years	Number of schools for Inclusive Education	Enrollment of PWD by 2013-2014

TOWARDS A CHILD ...

Mechanisms have to be made more effective and the Global Task Force on Child Labour and Education must be revitalised.

Employment Emergency:
Let's admit that we have not been able to reap in the "Youth Dividend". Their energy and potential is not fully transformed into responsible citizenship and economic growth. Arab spring and other civil unrests are clear manifestations of our collective failure. The disillusionment in our youth is taking a violent turn. We all know what happened in Egypt, Tunisia, Syria, Algeria, Iraq, Sudan etc. This uprising and unabated violence is a repercussion of the repression of youth aspirations. Civil unrest and political instability will further fuel displacement of people, loss of livelihood and denial of quality education which in turn may increase exploitation of children. I would like to underline that worst forms of child labour is systemic violence against children. We cannot ignore the harsh reality that, while there are 200 million unemployed youth and adults across the world, 168 million child labourers continue to languish.

We must inculcate entrepreneurship, employability, empowerment and a sense of social protection in our youth through appropriate educational measures, particularly among the age group of 14-18 years. But how is it possible without protecting adolescents from economic exploitation and ensuring quality education for them?

Economic Emergency:
The world continues to reel under the aftermath of global financial crisis. Paradoxically high unemployment and low growth rates are being registered even in some of the most developed countries. This is obviously resulting in ODA decrease and social sector budget cuts. Additionally natural calamities, armed conflicts and displacement of indigenous communities may actually reverse the progress made towards elimination of child labour thus far. Investments in education as well as towards sustained interventions to eliminate child labour are strong methods of mitigating the economic crisis in the long run. No country has ever achieved continuous and rapid economic growth without first having at least 40% of its adults able to read and write. There is ample evidence to prove beyond reasonable doubts that a farmer's yield is directly proportional to the education attained. A single year of primary schooling increases the wages people earn later in life by 5-15% for boys and even more for girls. In case of secondary schooling this increment can be as high as 15-25%. It is important to note that every dollar spent on elimination of child labour today will return 7dollars after twenty years. One of the foundations of healthy economy is sustainable business. For business-ness to in turn ensure sustainability it is imperative that they consider their responsibilities towards people and environment with utmost diligence. Corporate houses must ensure that their supply chains are free from child labour and other labour rights' violations. Similarly decent working conditions for adults are non-negotiable. It is the private sector that benefits the most from educated and skilled workers yet ironically its contribution to education is less than 5% of all aid to education. This is less than even 0.1% of the profits of two of the world's biggest oil companies.

Ecological Emergency
Fifth emergency pertains to climate change. Not only is it affecting the ecological equilibrium but more importantly hitting the poor. Mankind's reckless approach towards the environment has started yielding devastating results. Natural calamities lead to destruction of life and property compelling the indigenous population of the affected areas to dislocate. This in turn results in loss of livelihood paving fertile ground for organised nexuses of child traffickers and recruiters to operate and exploit. There are several examples from different parts of the globe, Asian Tsunami being one of them where child traffickers had bet big on natural calamities. Government agencies should have a child friendly approach towards disaster management. The rescue and relief agencies must be sensitised, trained and prepared to meet such eventualities at all times.

ecological imbalance on vulnerability of children is equally important for awareness raising of the policy makers and the service providers.

Ethical Emergency:
The overall decline in morality and ethics in politics, business and social life is largely responsible for perpetual abuses and exploitation of children. We make big promises to improve the lives of children and shamelessly break them. We talk high but act low. Hypocrisy towards children is the biggest sin, for me. We must reflect personally and collectively as to how honest are we to these most exploited children? It is high time for real soul searching. If we genuinely want to render this world as child friendly, we must collaboratively fight these emergencies for sustained elimination of child labour. More pro-active and sincere measures must be taken without further delay. We as the Governments, workers, employers and civil society must declare a war on child labour. This war cannot be won without strong, committed, coherent and well-resourced worldwide movement. We must not forget that each day lost in the life of a child is irrecoverable so we need to act now with the sense of utmost urgency because we have to see a child friendly world in our lifetime to pass on the legacy to our most cherished possession-our children.

INCLUSIVE EDUCATION IN NE ...

from North East. Since the PWD Act 1995 advocates for free education of CWSN up-to the age of 18 years hence the age groups from 5-9 and 10-19 have been considered in this write up.

The non-availability of sufficient qualified professionals for the evaluation of PWDs in North East has badly effected the enumeration of PWDs in the region. Thus it has become very difficult to quantify how many PWDs in the age groups of 5-9 years and 10-19 years are actually mild, moderate or profound.

Challenges to the inclusive education system:
Lack of trained personnel and of flexi curriculum: The majority of school employees are not trained to design and implement educational programs for CWSN in regular schools. Evidences reveal that all the states of North East do not have sufficient trained/qualified personnel to teach CWSN. Further the non-flexi "curriculum and evaluation method" is also found to be a challenge to the system.

Removal of architectural barrier: Though provisions have been made under the PWD Act 1995 for creation of architectural barrier free environment for the PWDs, those are hardly executed in full in most part and it has adverse affect on the integration of CWSN in the regular education system.

Poverty: A large number of CWSN live in families with income below poverty. The combination of poverty and disability results in a condition of "immediate deprivation" which sets up challenges to the participation of CWSN in regular schooling.

Attitudes: The prejudice mind setup of the parents of the non-disabled Childs that disability is disease and it can be spread to their child if mix up with CWSN is a major hurdle in the process.

How to overcome these challenges
Training of teachers: Effective training on disabilities has to be provided to the teachers to make the inclusive education system success. The Rehabilitation Council of India (RCI) who is responsible for the creation of human resources in the field of disabilities needs to adopt a policy for training of at least one teacher from each school. The provision for appointment of Special Educators in the ratio of 1: 5 under IEDSS should be implemented soon.

Collaboration between different ministries: As different ministries are entrusted with the responsibilities of implementing different schemes/policies hence a better coordination among the different ministries will certainly help in achieving desired goals.

Channelizing NGO's in implementing inclusive education programs: Government departments has limitations in execution of certain programs under certain conditions. The involvement of NGOs will certainly be very instrumental in such situation.

Role of university: Universities may be used in designing curriculums which may help in changing the attitudes of people towards PWDs. As a large number of teachers will be required to make the programs success, distance mode of education may be used. Further flexi "curriculum and evaluation" system may be designed considering the needs of CWSN.

Conclusion
With the implementation of The Persons with Disabilities Act in 1995, Rights of Children to Free and Compulsory Education (RTE) Act 2009 and the adoption of National Policies for Person with disabilities, 2006 and the National Policy for Children 2013, the inclusive education has started gaining momentum. However the success of the inclusive education system will depend on how educators and educational systems work together.
